Funeral of Mrs. Lucas.

A large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends attended the funeral services of Mrs. Mamie Roche Lucas, Friday afternoon, in the Paris cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. E. H. Rutherford.

The pall-bearers were as follows: Dr. Frank Roche, O. P. Carter, Jr., Ben Bishop, James Hukill, Phil Deignan and James M. O'Brien.

Those from a distance who attended the services were: Mrs. Katherine Callahan, Mrs. Annie McDonald and daughter, Miss Jennie McDonald, and Mr. and Mrs. John Parker, of Frankfort; Messrs. Collins, of Huntsville, Ala., cousins of the deceased, and Mrs. Margaret Flynn, Mrs. John Sullivan, Misses Lillie Benckart, and Mary McNamara, and Messrs. Thomas McNamara and James Doyle, of Lexington; Mrs. Katie Washington, of Rockport, Ill., sister of Mr. Lucas, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Ann Lucas, of Cynthia.

Reward Offered For Lost Umbrella.

The umbrella that was picked up from the corner of the postoffice lobby on last Wednesday evening while the gentleman who put it there was talking to Postmaster Earlywine in his private office, was a piece of property that was highly prized by its owner, it being a Christmas present from his mother. It was a silk umbrella, with a hook gun metal handle with a silver vine on handle. If the person who has this umbrella is not a common thief, he will return it to this office and receive a liberal reward for same. There is not another umbrella like it in Paris, and it can easily be detected by the owner.

Painful Accident.

Mr. Bruce Miller, editor and proprietor of the Kentuckian-Citizen, met with a very painful accident late Sunday afternoon. Mr. Miller had occasion to visit his office and enter his large safe and after returning some papers to the safe after examining them slammed the heavy door, which caught the end of his left thumb, cutting it off as smooth as if it had been done with a surgeon's knife. He picked up the disjointed piece and proceeded to the office of Dr. Silas Evans, where the end was put back and the wound dressed. While he is suffering considerably from the wound there is some hopes of the dismembered piece adhering to its proper place.

Powers Issues Statement.

Caleb Powes Saturday issued a statement in which he criticizes Judge Robbins' decision vacating the bench. He says Judge Robbins vacated the law laid down by himself in permitting the Commonwealth to controvert his affidavit. Several affidavits of persons who say they saw Judge Robbins enter the jury room, are also made public by Powers.

Auto Fatalities.

At Bordeaux, France, a racing automobile, competing in the Criterion cup, collided in a dust cloud with a touring car, resulting in the death of five men and the fatal injury of two others. At Middletown, N. Y., a machine turned turtle in a ditch, killing two persons, fatally injured another and hurt three children. A trolley car at Atlantic City collided with an automobile and Mrs. Charles H. Law was killed. Her husband and the chauffeur were painfully injured.

Family Reunion.

The Withers family held their annual summer reunion July 26, at Fairacre, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ashbrook, near Paris. Mrs. Wm. Temple Withers, who is here from Ocoee, Florida, spending the summer with her daughters and her brother-in-law, Mr. James Withers, of Cynthia, the eldest member of the family, were the honored guests. The occasion was a happy gathering for all.

The guests assembled in the woods back of the house in the beautiful sugar maple grove where luncheon was served.

Among those present for the reunion were: Mrs. James T. Withers, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Headley, Mr. A. M. Harrison, Miss Katherine Headley, Mr. James Headley, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Withers, Misses Martha, Catherine, Bella and Lena Withers, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ashbrook, Messrs. Alan, Temple and Thomas Ashbrook, Mrs. Charles W. Moore, Mr. Temple Moore, Misses Virginia and Ida Harrison Moore, Master Whitney Moore, Mr. and Mrs. James Withers, of Cynthia; Mrs. Jennie Withers Smith, Miss Jane Brooker, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis, Miss Katherine Davis, Messrs. Withers, John, and Joseph Davis, of Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Withers, of Cynthia, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Berry, and sons, Dawson and Jack Berry.

A tent was provided in case of rain but the weather was fine and all present felt that it was a perfect and delightful occasion.

To the regret of the company, Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham Joyce and Miss Rebel Withers were prevented from attending by illness.

Sunday School Convention.

There were near four hundred people in attendance at the Annual Bourbon County Sunday School Convention or the Christian church at North Middletown last Thursday.

Every Sunday school in the county was represented with delegations numbering from five to twenty-five, while a large number of visitors were present from adjoining counties. Each Sunday school sent a written report, which showed a contribution to the fund for the endowment of a chair of Sunday School Pedagogy at Kentucky University; a contribution to the general organization for State work, entitling each to a position on the roll of honor.

State Evangelist R. M. Hopkins, of Louisville, was present and gave much encouragement to the representatives of the various schools. The convention was held in the Christian church, which was totally inadequate to accommodate the crowd, and was presided over by Elder W. S. Willis, of Clintonville. John Willie Jones was secretary, and made an address that was pronounced one of the best ever heard in Sunday School work.

E. R. Butington, the new principal of the North Middletown Classical and Business College, made an address on the subject, "Teacher's Training Course." The venerable John S. Sweeney, of Paris, who gave more than fifty years of his life to the ministry, delivered an interesting talk on the Sunday School work of a generation ago. At the noon hour the convention adjourned to the beautiful college grove where the women of the congregation of the North Middletown Christian church had prepared dinner.

At the afternoon session a number of addresses were delivered by Elder C. W. Dick, Dr. Burrows, J. Moler McVey, W. S. Willis, Elder Waters, W. O. Hinton and others.

Better Than Gas.

No natural gas for Paris this year, but we have something better—Electric Light—and it is just as cheap in the long run.

Seats On Sale.

Reserved seats for "In Old Yarrow" are now on sale at Oberdorfer's. Don't fail to see this for it will be the best performance ever put on the stage in Paris by home talent. Then too, it is under the auspices of the Hospital League.

Col. Clay Improving.

Col. E. F. Clay, the widely-known breeder of thoroughbred horses, who has been critically ill for nearly two weeks with appendicitis at Runnymede, his country home near Paris, is reported much improved and, while he is yet by no means out of danger, the doctors now believe that the chances are in favor of his recovery. Col. Clay was given some nourishment Saturday, it being the first time he has eaten since he was taken ill, two weeks ago.

He was again given food Sunday and was permitted to sit up in bed for a short time. If no relapse occurs it is hoped that the patient will soon be on the way to convalescence.

Fined For Jumping Board Bill.

John Hatter, an employee of the L. & N. railroad, was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriff W. F. Talbott on the charge of jumping a board bill.

Hatter recently was married to Miss Jessie Bean and went to board at the McKenney boarding house, on North Main street, near Second Street. Several months later it is alleged he deserted his wife as well as his boarding house without having previously settled his bill of $28. Saturday, Mr. McKenney, hearing of Hatter's presence in the city, swore out a warrant for his arrest and placing the document in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Talbott, accompanied the officer to the depot, where Hatter was pointed out and placed under arrest.

He was fined $25 and cost in Judge Dundon's Court yesterday morning, and if fine is not paid or replevin will have to work it out in the county work house.

Odd Fellows' Orphans to Visit Paris To-day.

Thirty-five children from the Kentucky Odd Fellows' Orphan Home, Lexington, will arrive in Paris at 3 o'clock this afternoon to be the guests of Bourbon Lodge, No. 23, of this city.

The children will be in charge of Superintendent I. N. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. George Kenney.

Upon their arrival the party will alight from the car at Eighth street where they will be met by the Paris Drum Corps and escorted to the court house where a public reception will be tendered the little ones.

The following program will be carried out:
Address—W. O. Hinton.
Song—The Children.
Address—Mrs. Alfred Wornall.
Song—The Children.
Address—W. C. G. Hobbs, G. M. Benediction.

The children will then repair to C. B. Mitchell's and E. B. Mann's for ice refreshments, after which they will go to Foot's landing for a delightful boat ride in steam launches several miles up Stoner creek. Returning they will be taken to Crossdale's restaurant for supper, after which a visit to the moving picture show will end the festivities. The party will leave on the 7 o'clock p. m. car for the home at Lexington. While in the city the party will be in charge of a committee from Bourbon Lodge, headed by E. B. January.

Union Station Opened.

The new union station, at Lexington, which for over a year has been under construction in that city, was thrown open for business Sunday, the first train for which tickets were sold in the new structure being the eastbound C. & O. train which left at 11:05 a. m. All trains of the C. & O., L. & E., and L. & N. lines will arrive and depart from the new station.

The officials who have charge of the daily business are as follows:

J. W. Throckmorton, station master; S. T. Swift, ticket agent; assistant ticket agent, F. B. Barnard; day telegraph operators, W. H. Tillow; night operator, C. D. Stovall; I. W. Hassell, baggage master; W. H. Thompson, assistant; Miss Lucy Catherwood, matron.

Executor's Sale

—OF FINE—
Bourbon County
LANDS.

As Executor of the late A. W. Wright, I will sell publicly, at the court house door in Paris, Kentucky, about the hour of 11 o'clock a. m., on the lands of the late A. W. Wright, lying and situated on the Maysville and Lexington turnpike, and the Paris and Lexington Interurban Railroad, and about three miles South of the City of Paris, Ky. Said farm is in two tracts, one known as the "Home Tract," and contains about 100 acres, and adjoins the lands of Wm. Hall and R. P. Barnett. There is upon this "Home Tract" a substantial brick dwelling house of six rooms, with all necessary outbuildings attached, and a good and substantial tobacco barn. The other tract is known as the "McConnell Tract," and contains about 175 acres, and adjoins the lands of Matt Kenney, J. W. Ferguson, R. P. Barnett and T. E. Ashbrook. There is upon this tract two good tenant houses, one good and substantial tobacco barn and a stable. Said tract will be offered first separately and then as a whole, but the undersigned reserves the right to reject any or all bids. The two tracts above described are splendidly located, well watered, well timbered and in every way most desirable for a home and for farming purposes.

TERMS.—Said lands will be sold upon the following terms: One-third cash in hand on the day of sale, one-third to become due and payable twelve months after date of sale, and one-third in eighteen months after the day of sale. Each of said deferred payments to bear interest at 6 per cent. per annum from the day of sale until paid, and secured by a lien upon the lands.

The right to seed this place will be given this fall, and full possession will be given the first of March, 1908.
EMMETT M. DICKSON,
Executor of A. W. Wright.

PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY.ONE YEAR, - - - $2.00 | SIX MONTHS, - - - $1.00
.....PAYABLE IN ADVANCE.....Governor Johnson Of Minnesota.

So many new candidates are being mentioned for the nomination by the Democracy for President, who are comparatively unknown by the great majority of the voters, that it would seem appropriate to give brief biographies of the most prominent ones. As William Jennings Bryan has been twice the candidate of the Democratic party and has thus been more in the public eye than almost any other American it would be superfluous to give his biography, for his public life is an open book to his countrymen.

Among those most frequently mentioned besides Mr. Bryan are Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota; Gov. Hoke Smith, of Georgia; Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia; Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas; Gov. Folk, of Missouri; President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University; John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi; Gov. Beckham, of Kentucky; former Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, and Judson Harmon, of Ohio.

Gov. Johnson will be first considered. He was born at St. Peter, Minnesota, July 28, 1861, of Swedish parents. His father was a blacksmith, who died leaving his family unprovided for. In 1873, therefore, John was obliged to quit school and work for the support of the family. He was employed in a printing office at $10 a month, and gave all his earnings to his mother. Afterwards, he became a clerk in a drug store, and, in 1877, he was getting $75 a month, though but sixteen years old.

He joined the National Guard, in which he served seven years, reaching the rank of captain. Returning to the printing business, he became a member of the firm of Essier and Johnson, publishers of the St. Peter Herald, of which he was until recently the editor. He has always been a Democrat, and was elected, as such, to the State Senate in which he served one term before he was nominated for Governor by his party, in 1904. As a candidate for Governor, he received a majority of 1,500 in a popular vote of 297,592, although Roosevelt carried the State by a majority of 161,000. As the first Democratic governor of Minnesota since the war he gave the State a wise, decent, economical administration. He opposed extravagance and every kind of fraud; and successfully planned and advocated legislation taxing mortgages, and the Steel Trust, iron ore monopoly, sleeping car companies, etc. He also procured the establishment of a permanent tax commission to adjust the burden of state taxes upon the different counties. He obtained a reduction of freight rates in Minnesota; also a two cent passenger fare, and the abolition of the corrupt free pass system; and secured the passage of statutes regulating the management of life insurance, which have proved entirely efficient.

In consequence of these reforms, he was renominated for Governor by the Democrats in 1906, and carried the State by a majority of 76,633 votes, showing greatly increased popularity. Gov. Johnson's position on the important issues of the day can be best told in his own words. "For instance," he has recently said: "I believe the State must be absolute in their authority to regulate and control railway rates on business wholly within the State. I believe that the Government should do no business which can be done as well, or better, by private individuals. The time has not arrived when there should be even a suggestion of government ownership of railroads."

Kentucky Democracy Demands A Fair Trial.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Caleb Powers was called in the Scott Circuit Court Monday morning of last week and entered into for the fourth time. Three times he has been tried for complicity in the assassination of Governor William Goebel, three times convicted and the judgment reversed each time by the higher courts. This is his fourth trial, he objected to Judge Robbins and the honorable Judge has vacated the bench.

The guilt or innocence of Caleb Powers does not affect the people of this Commonwealth so much as does the manner of his trial. It is a matter of vital importance to the people of this State, and particularly the Democracy of the State, that Caleb Powers receive a fair and impartial trial. It has been charged, whether falsely or not, that in his former trials undue discrimination has been shown in selecting jurors, so that only Democrats and no Republicans have been allowed to serve; that the judges have been prejudiced against him; that witnesses have been bribed, and many other accusations. If he is innocent, no man in this country has ever been more cruelly wronged; and if he is guilty, as three juries have declared, he should be hung. Guilty or innocent, he should receive a fair trial.

A fair and impartial trial by jury is the greatest boon of any nation. Nearly seven hundred years ago our English ancestors wrested from King John the right of any man charged with crime to have his case (fairly) tried by a jury of his peers. This right has been jealously guarded during the ensuing centuries, being handed down to us as one of our most sacred liberties. Shall we allow our judges and court officials to tamper with it now? It is far better that a ballot box be stuffed, revolting as it is, than that a jury wheel be tampered with in order to free the guilty or convict the innocent. Trickery may be winked at in elections, but it must not and will not be tolerated in our judiciary—the tribunal that controls the life and liberty of our citizens.

The last week has witnessed the dismissal of the last case against James Hargis for complicity in the murder of White, Cox and Marcum. The Republican press of the State is already drawing comparisons between his case and that of Caleb Powers, in which Hargis has been thrice acquitted and Powers thrice convicted, in which Hargis has always been allowed bail and never been imprisoned, and Powers has never been allowed bail and has been imprisoned for seven years, in which one is a Democrat and the other a Republican, both of high rank in their respective parties. Does it not behoove the Democratic administration and the Democratic officials of Scott county to see that Caleb Powers receives a perfectly fair and impartial trial at this time? Does it not behoove Governor Beckham to appoint a judge that will be acceptable to both the prosecution and the defense? If Powers is again convicted, let it be done in such a manner that no unfairness can be charged. Let all prejudice and partisanship be done away with and even-handed justice take its course. In this way alone can the Democratic party in Kentucky be vindicated and honored in the eyes of the world.

The Lineup.

The trust question, the tariff question and the railroad question present the same issue between the general public and the privileged classes. Shall the government be administered in the interest of the whole people or in the interest of a few? This is the issue presented by the trust question, the tariff question and the railroad question.

While democrats may differ as to the relative importance of the trust question, the tariff question and the railroad question, all must agree that the party must take the side of the common people on all three questions.

Let the line be drawn between those who want to make this government of the people, by the people and for the people and those who want it to be a government of the corporations and for the corporations.

Civil Service Reform.

Champ Clark, in a speech on civil service reform, told a story of a sharp retort to an examination question propounded by the Civil Service Board. A man applying for a position to run an elevator was asked: "How many troops did England send to the colonies during the Revolutionary War?" The reply was: "A damn sight more than ever went back." And so it may come to pass with the "little brown men," should the Mikado attempt the capture of Uncle Sam's insular possessions. The time is now for the Japs to sit up and take notice.

Someone has defined a Republican as "one who believes in the greatest good to the smallest number." Nothing could be more exact.

CONSUMPTION'S WARNING

Inside facts soon become evident in outside symptoms.—DR. C. G. GREEN.

There is no disease known that gives so many plain warnings of its approach as consumption, and no serious disease that can be so quickly reached and checked, if the medicine used is Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which is made to cure consumption.

It is in the early stages that German Syrup should be taken, when warnings are given in the cough that won't quit, the congestion of the bronchial tubes and the gradual weakening of the lungs, accompanied by frequent expectoration.

But no matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has already attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble.

A COUNTRY VISITOR.

The New York Man Felt Above Him, but Changed His Opinion.

One of the most successful wholesale dry goods merchants New York city ever saw had the peculiar habit of regarding as his inferior any man who was engaged in a business less genteel, as he held, than his own. In his employ was a young Vermonter, who felt highly elated when one day a man from his native town who was visiting the city called on him. The man was somewhat crude in his manners, but he had piled up a fortune in the tinware business and in buying up at a discount in times of panic commercial paper which he believed was good. The youth introduced the Vermonter to his employer.

"What business are you in?" asked the dry goods prince as the two shook hands.

"The tin-a-a-r business," drawled the Vermonter.

Without a word the dry goods merchant turned on his heel and bolted into his private office. He didn't recognize tinware merchants as desirable acquaintances.

"Hold on a minute, Mr. ——" shouted the Vermonter after the retreating figure. "Are these here things goin' to be paid when they fall due?"

From his wallet the Vermonter drew several slips of paper, which he held up to the dry goods merchant's face. The merchant glanced at them and of-fusely bade the Vermonter welcome to his private office. The papers were notes to the extent of $50,000 uttered by the dry goods merchant and which, unknown to him, the Vermonter had bought up at a big discount.—Brooklyn Eagle.

OLD TIME CELEBRATIONS.

Happiness the Order of the Day, Tranquillity of the Night.

The files of old newspapers are a priceless record of the history and manners of their times. In the papers of 1796 the accounts of public rejoicings show that these were few in number and that the method of keeping them differed widely from our ideas of festivities. Washington's birthday was perhaps the greatest holiday.

"Industrious citizens," we are told, "appropriated the hour of noon for the congratulations of the day. Each family enriched the domestic meal with bountiful provisions, and gay spirits and temperate and undissipated joy pervaded all classes."

There were speeches and processions and illuminations for the less industrious who were willing to give something more than the hour of noon to the celebration, but the most memorable observance of the day was that of the Harvard students.

"Saying to each other that it would be disgraceful to pretend to honor Washington with riot and disorder, they retired to their chambers before 9 o'clock, and by the time the bells ceased ringing there was not a light to be seen in any of the buildings."

This is equaled by the summing up of the celebrations of Fourth of July for the same year, a day observed with great rejoicings. No accidents are reported, and the editor concludes, "In short, in every place we heard from happiness was the order of the day, tranquillity of the night."—Youth's Companion.

The Luscious Grape.

The grape, whose purple flood man for century after century has converted into wine, is a Persian by birth. Its cradle was on the sunny hills to the south of the Caspian sea, and there the ancients ate it and enjoyed its acid taste. The men of Canaan ground it to a dry powder and ate it with relish, half as a medicine, half because they liked it. And then those days went by, and we hear of the renowned grapes of Palestine, which grew in immense clusters and weighed fifteen pounds to the bunch. Noah planted the vine immediately after the deluge. The book of Genesis mentions bread and wine, and the Israelites complained that Moses and Aaron had brought them out of Egypt into a dry and barren land where there were neither figs nor vines.

A Difficult Feet.

Have you ever tried to stand upright on a log perhaps a foot across the butt out in an open lake, keeping your balance to every roll and dip of the log? Well, if you had you would realize better the marvelous balance of the man who not only has to do this, but also maneuver other logs down the current with a long pole, chain booms together with matted fingers, and, in fact, do the whole of his day's work while balancing on a twirling, twisting, half submerged tree trunk.—Wide World Magazine.

Immune.

"You'd better get out. Here comes that idiot Doreham, and he's got a story he thinks is new that he'll insist on handing you."

"No, he won't. I'm immune."

"How's that?"

"I told him the story."—Cleveland Leader.

Worse Than He Felt.

Cutting—I suppose it did make you feel mean. Dubbs—Will, I should say! Why, I felt like a plugged nickel! Cutting—Ah! But what a blessing it is that we never feel quite as bad as we look.—Philadelphia Press.

Meeting Trouble.

More people would snap their fingers in the face of trouble if trouble didn't have such a sudden way of swooping down on us.—Chicago Record-Herald.

When a man seeks your advice he generally wants your praise.—Chesterfield.

A QUAIN DOCUMENT.

Minutes of the First Representative Assembly in America.

The minutes of the first representative assembly in America as written by its clerk, John Twine, constitute a quaint and interesting document. They are headed:

"A report of the manner of proceeding in the general assembly convened at James City, in Virginia, July 30, 1619, consisting of the governor, the council of estate and two burgesses elected out of each incorporation and plantation, and being dissolved the 4th of August next ensuing."

The assembly met in the "quaire of the church." Then, "forasmuch as men's affairs doe little prosper where God's service is neglected, all the burgesses took their places in the quire till a prayer was said by Mr. Bucke, the minister, that it would please God to guide and sanctifie all our proceedings to his owne glory and the good of this plantation."

After the prayer the burgesses were summoned one by one to take the oath to the king, "none staggering at it."

The assembly at once set to work to adopt English laws to Virginia conditions. It added a series of trade regulations to restrict the production of tobacco, to keep up prices and to encourage the output of flax, silk and wine. Thus before the Pilgrims were thinking of leaving Holland representative government was firmly established in the new world.—Exchange.

FOOLING A CAMEL.

How the Arabs Let the Animal Exhaust Its Bad Temper.

You all have heard stories about the camel—how patient and useful he is on long, hot journeys, so that he is often called the "ship of the desert." But he has one very bad fault. He likes to "pay back," and if his driver has injured him in any way he will not rest till he has returned the injury.

The Arabs, who wander about the deserts and so use the camel a great deal, know about this fault of his and have a queer way of keeping themselves from getting hurt.

When a driver has made his camel angry, he first runs away out of sight. Then, choosing a place where the camel will soon pass, he throws down some of his clothes and fixes them so that the heap will look like a sleeping man.

Pretty soon along comes the camel and sees the heap. "Thinking to himself, 'Now I've got him,'" he pounces on the clothes, shakes them around and tramples all over them. After he is tired of this and has turned away the driver can reappear and ride him away without harm.

Poor silly camel! He has been in what we call "a blind rage," so angry that he can't tell the difference between a man and a heap of clothes.—Mayflower.

Carried It In His Head.

When four years old Mozart played minutes and learned music with facility, and at the age of six he composed a concerto for the harpsichord, which, though written strictly in accordance with the principles and technique of his art, was yet so overloaded with difficulties that it could not be played.

It is related that Mozart once happened to put off some music that he had been engaged to furnish for a court concert so long that he had not time to write out the part which he himself was to perform.

The Emperor Joseph, who was of a curious turn, chanced to be in the composer's studio when he asked: "Where is your part? I do not see it among these sheets of music."

"Hanged" and "Hung."

Perhaps the Bible has had an influence in preventing many people from distinguishing between the uses of "hanged" and "hung," says a London writer. They "hanged" Haman, but the Jews in captivity also "hanged" their harps upon the willows, and in the New Testament we read "it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck." If "hanged" was correct in either sense in the days of the authorized version, those who are not strong upon grammar may be subconsciously induced to believe that "hung" is correct in both senses now. But it is curious that the exclamation "I'll be hanged!" never appears as "I'll be hung?"

Clever Woman.

"There is no use trying to deny it," said one man to another. "Bliss is badly married. I hate to say it, but it's so."

"How do you know?"

"By a talk I have just had with him."

"Does he complain?"

"No. That's the pathetic part of it. He was telling me how good natured and clever his wife is because this morning she showed him how to fasten his braces to his trousers with a hairpin."—London Titbits.

He Was Cruel.

Mrs. Nubbins—My husband is a perfect brute. Friend—You amaze me. Mrs. Nubbins—Since the baby began teething nothing would quiet the little angel but pulling his papa's beard, and yesterday he went and had his beard shaved off.—London Tit-Bits.

He Wandered.

Reggy (fervently)—Ah, Miss Rose, when I gaze on you my mind wanders. Miss Rose (with a yawn)—What a pity, Reggy, the rest of you doesn't keep up with your mind.—London Express.

He who has three enemies must agree with two.—German Proverb.

Stammer to Yourself.

To the many correspondents who have written inquiries and suggestions as to a cure for stammering we may state that this is not a medical bureau. This writer gave his own method of curing his own particular nervous disorder, which is probably shared by many of his fellow men. Let it be repeated in answer to many who seem to have seen the problem and missed the solution. Consume your own smoke. If you must stammer, try to stammer to yourself. When you have tut-tutted and gur-gurred sufficiently to yourself, you will be ready with the word. It is quite astonishing how soon the inaudible stammer becomes unnecessary and the word is whizzed out! But there are some men who lug a stammer—stammering always in the right place—lifting curiosity to tiptoe in the listener. Charles Lamb stammered, but always in the right place, as when he went to buy cheese (the story may be quite untrue). The shopman offered to send it home. Lamb inspected it. Then he asked for a bit of string. "I think," he said, "I could l-l-l-head it home."—London Spectator.

Not a Clothes Peg.

Peggie Newton had been a faithful household drudge for years, and had not grumbled much when her wages were occasionally passed over. But as time went on, and her salary fell more and more into arrears, she ventured to ask for something "on account."

"Why, haven't I paid you your wages lately, Peg? How careless of me," her mistress said. "I'm sorry I have no money in the house just now, but here's a smart cloak that I've ceased to wear, and which is only a wee bit out of fashion. You'll take it in lieu of wages, won't you?"

"No, ma'am, I'm sure I shan't," said Peg, wrathfully eyeing the faded old cloak. "A peg I may be by name, but I won't be the sort of peg that people hang castoff clothes on—not if I know it."—London Answers.

Old Whist Terms.

"On Sunday last a terrible fire broke out at Lady Brag's, occasioned by the following accident: Mrs. Overall, the housekeeper, having lost three rubbers at whist running without holding a swabber (notwithstanding she had changed chairs, furzed the cards and ordered Jemmy, the footboy, to sit cross-legged for good luck), grew out of all patience and, taking up the devil's books, as she called them, flung them into the fire, and the flames spread to the steward's room."

Swabbers are the ace of hearts, the knave of clubs and the ace and the deuce of trumps at whist. To furz or fuzz is to shuffle the cards very carefully or to change the pack.—London Notes and Queries.

Why Rain Clouds Are Black.

The color of a cloud depends on the manner in which the sunlight falls upon it and the position of the observer. It will be noticed that high clouds are always white or light in color, and this is because the light by which they are seen is reflected from the under surface by the numberless drops of moisture which go to form the cloud. Heavy rain clouds, on the other hand, are found much nearer the earth, and so the light falls on them more directly from above, giving a silver lining to the cloud, though the undersurface appears black owing to the complete reflection and absorption of the light by the upper layers. Seen from above by an observer in a balloon, the blackest rain clouds appear of the most dazzlingly brilliant white.

Tennis and Lawn Tennis.

There are thousands who imagine that tennis and lawn tennis are identical. In America tennis, the mother game, is always known as court tennis, whereas lawn tennis is generally known as "tennis." The games are in many respects very different. The court, which in lawn tennis is open, in tennis is closed at the back and sides by the walls, and almost invariably above by a roof. There is a considerable amount of play off the back and side walls. The balls are harder than lawn tennis balls, being, in fact, of the consistency of cricket balls. Hence the rackets are heavier and the gut is thicker.—Fry's Magazine.

Songs and Sentiment.

It is a singular fact that in proportion to the wealth of melody of a nation so does its emotional side develop. Remarkable instances of this are to be found in the United Kingdom. In Scotland, Ireland and Wales, countries rich in national songs, the emotional nature is strong. In England, where the melodies, if sweet, at any rate are not so touching and appealing, sentiment is slight.—Liverpool Courier.

The History of Man.

The ecclesiastical authorities divide the history of man into six ages: First, from Adam to Noah; second, from Noah to Abraham; third, from Abraham to David; fourth, from David to the Babylonian captivity; fifth, from the captivity of Judah to the birth of Christ; sixth, from the birth of Christ to the end of the world.

Typhoid.

By boiling all the water and sterilizing all the milk and thoroughly cooking all the vegetables and killing all the flies the average person may become fairly immune from typhoid fever.

Easy in the Garden.

"I have done nothing but blub all day," complained the rose, "and still that idiot of a poet goes on talking of the sweet smell, as if there were any roses!"

Alive Four Months in a Grave.

Harl Das, the great Hindoo fakir, who lived in the first half of the nineteenth century, is the only wonder worker of modern times who has ever allowed himself to be buried in the ground for months. In the year 1839 Harl told General Ventura that for a certain fee he would allow a committee to test the claims which he made of being able to die and remain dead for months and then come to life again. When all was arranged Harl hypnotized himself to such a degree that his circulation was wholly stopped. When he was pronounced dead to all intents and purposes he was buried in a garden and a high wall built around the grave. Guards were stationed on the wall so that interference or deception would be impossible. Four months later Harl was exhumed according to agreement, and after a few minutes of vigorous rubbing of his body by friends he opened his eyes, and an hour later he was well and able to walk. "The fakir was clean shaven when buried and is said to have come out of the grave in the same shape, a fact which is cited to prove that vitality must have been completely suspended."

Seventeenth Century Superstitions.

That it is a very unfortunate thing for a man to meet early in a morning a ill favored man or woman, a rough footed Hen, a shag-haired Dogge, or a blacke Cat. That it is a signe of death to some in that house, where Crickets have bin many yeeres, if on a sudden they forsake the Chimney Corner. That if a man dream of eggs or fire he shall heare of anger. That to dreame of the devil is good lucke. That to dreame of gold good lucke, but of silver ill. That if a man be born in the daytime he shall be unfortunate. That if a child be born with a Caule on his head he shall be very fortunate. That when the palme of the right hand itcheth it is a shrowd sign he shall receive money. That it is a great signe of ill lucke it Rats gnaw a mans clothes. That it is naught for any man to give a paire of Knives to his sweetheart, for feare it cuts away all love that is between them. That it is ill lucke to have the saltseller fall toward you.

Likes Being Hunted.

The extraordinary intelligence and skill displayed by roynard when being hunted makes it extremely probable that he, in common with the huntsman and the hounds, feels the keen pleasure of the pride of art—an important constituent of the spirit of the sport. In proof of this, an old fox, when fresh, has often been observed to wait for the hounds, apparently with the purpose of drawing them on, and so giving an opportunity for the display of his skill. The fox owes his present existence in England to his skill in providing sport, and it is not therefore unreasonable to suppose that he has acquired the sporting instinct, just as the pointer, the hunter and the terrier certainly enter into the spirit of the sport for which they have been bred and to which, therefore, they owe their existence.—London Standard.

Ostriches Are Poor Sailors.

"Ostriches are terrible creatures to have aboard ship in a storm," said a sailor. "Knocked about by the waves, they fall and break their legs. We once carried eight superb ostriches. They were good sailors. Their sea appetites were fine. But two days from port a nasty gale overtook us. And then it was pitiful to see those ostriches. The ship's lurches and ducks knocked them off their pins, sent them rolling back and forth, to and fro, wildly, helplessly. Imagine a dozen ostriches, now on their feet, then—bang—on their backs, their long legs in the air, rolling every which way. What you'd expect to happen happened, of course. Their legs broke. You could hear above the storm the sharp crack of the splitting bone. Of those eight fine ostriches only two reached port alive."

Books Written in Jail.

Jail seems to be a good place in which to write books. Literary men surpass themselves there. John Bunyan wrote "Pilgrim's Progress" in jail. Cervantes wrote "Don Quixote" in prison. Defoe laid the plans for "Robinson Crusoe" during a term of confinement imposed on him for the writing of a pamphlet called "The Shortest Way With the Dissenters." Leigh Hunt wrote "Rimmi" in jail. Sir Walter Raleigh during his fourteen years' imprisonment in the Tower of London wrote his excellent "History of the World." Silvio Pellico and Tasso both did their best work in jail.

Food and Digestion.

One of the biggest mistakes about food which people make is to forget that the true value of food to anybody is the measure of its digestibility. Half a pound of cheese is vastly more nourishing, as regards its mere composition, than half a pound of beef; but while the beef will be easily digested, and thus be of vast service to us, the cheese is put out of court altogether for ordinary folks by reason of its indigestibility. We should bear this rule in mind when we hear people comparing one food with another in respect of their chemical value.

A Careful Official.

"Some years ago," remarked a physician, "when the people in the south feared that an epidemic of yellow fever would spread from Cuba to this country the health board officer of a certain southern city was so careful to keep out the infection that he gave orders to disinfect all telegrams received from Havana."

One Sided Talk.

"He—Wasn't there some talk about Maud marrying a duke? She—There was, but unfortunately the duke was none of the talking."

Better Than Gas.

No natural gas for Paris this year, but we have something better—Electric Light—and it is just as cheap in the long run.

PARIS ELECTRIC LIGHT CO.

Arthur Goebel Visits Franklin.

Arthur Goebel, of Cincinnati, was in Frankfort Saturday to see Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin regarding the Powers case. It is stated at the State Executive Department that a special judge to try Powers for alleged complicity in the assassination of Gov. Goebel will not be announced until the Governor returns to-day from Harbortown.

LATEST NEWS.

Booker T. Washington was the orator of the day Saturday at the Negro Industrial Convention at the Jamestown Exposition.

The first election in the Philippines has resulted in a victory for the Nationalist party, and they are already demanding independence, freedom to carry arms, jury trials, etc., etc.

It is reported that the railway officials of Virginia have accepted the ultimatum of the Governor and other officials and that the railroad will submit to the law and put the 2 cent rate into effect within 30 days.

Secretary Taft will speak at Lexington on the afternoon of August 22nd.

Governor Swanson may call an extra session of the Virginia Legislature to consider the railroad rate situation.

Lois Y. Leavell, a banker who died in Lexington, left $70,000 to the Lancaster graded schools.

Miss Adelaide Brown, of Louisville, was awarded the prize for being the handsomest woman at the Cynthia Fair.

Augustus St. Gaudens, LL. D., I. H. D. the sculptor, died at his home in Cornish, N. H., Saturday night, after a long illness. Death was due to a general breaking down.

President Roosevelt would make no comment when the telegram was handed him informing him of Judge Landis' Standard Oil decision. It even paralyzed the man with the big stick.

Better Than Gas.

No natural gas for Paris this year, but we have something better—Electric Light—and it is just as cheap in the long run.

Drowned Like Rats.

Forty persons were drowned like rats in a trap when a passenger train jumped the track and plunged off a bridge into the river Loire in France. Not a person escaping from the submerged car, although the top was blown off by the compressed air when the car sank.

Pool Rooms Raided.

Sheriff Scott Bullitt and his deputies raided the pool rooms in South Louisville, yesterday, arrested the operators and seized the paraphernalia. Officers went to the rooms in automobiles.

Two Special Premiums Worth Going After.

On page 51 of the catalog of the Bourbon County Agricultural Society will be found a special premium offered by The Kauffman Buggy Co., through its representatives in Paris, Yerkes & Kenney, of $20.00 for the best harness horse, gelding or mare, driven to a Kauffman vehicle purchased of Yerkes & Kenney, and $10.00 for second premium.

On page 57 of the catalog, you will also find a special premium of $20.00 offered by H. H. Babcock Co., through their agency, Yerkes & Kenney, for the best harness horse, gelding or mare, driven to a Babcock vehicle, bought of Yerkes & Kenney, and $10.00 for second premium.

The above specials are liberal and shows the interest taken in the Bourbon Fair by this enterprising young firm of Yerkes & Kenney, dealers in fine vehicles, farm implements, feed, grain, seeds, coal and salt.

The amount of the premiums are well worth trying for, as they would knock a nice sum off the cost of one of these excellent vehicles. There are none better made. Call on these gentlemen at R. J. Neely's old stand, corner Fourth and Pleasant and they will take pleasure in showing you the finest line of fine vehicles ever seen in Paris.

Battle of Boone's Ford.

Jamestown Exposition, Va., Aug. 3.—Indian warfare, the scene of a comahawks and the battle and crack of musketry will soon bring a bit of realism to the pine forest along the shores of Hamilton Road, where the log building and the site of the new "Fort Boone," Kentucky's home at Jamestown Park-Center Exposition.

Boone's Fort, the one of the great frontiersmen, Lewis Boone, stood on the south bank of the Kentucky river in Madison county, Kentucky, and many of the last for this representation at Jamestown came from the site of the original fort. In days of Indian warfare the settlers docked to the fort and many times it was attacked but always successfully defended.

On July 14th, 1775, Elizabeth and Frances, daughters of Col. Richard Callaway, and Jimmie, daughter of Daniel Boone, were in a canoe on the Clark County side of the river. Luring Indians captured and carried them away. The Indians were followed over trail leading by where the city of Winchester is now located.

The girls were rescued from the Indians at a point near Blue Licks. The pursuit party was as follows: Boone, Major Smith, Col. Floyd, Bartlett, Searcy, Catlett Jones, John Holder, Samuel Henderson and Flanders Callaway. The last three were young men and lovers of the girls; Henderson of the older Miss Callaway; Holder of her sister, Frances; Flanders Callaway, of Miss Boone. The story is one of the most thrilling in American history.

It is to commemorate this event that the citizens of that section of the Blue Grass State have arranged for a very unique celebration at the Jamestown Exposition on August 23. This date is known as "Winchester Day" and the program includes an attack on the "fort" by Indians concealed among the pines, and the capture and subsequent rescue of certain young ladies impersonating the pioneer damsels. His story will be repeated in realistic form.

Real Indians will be in the attacking party and some of Winchester's people, both male and female, will represent Indians. Others will represent the defenders of the Fort and the girls who were captured.

The committee to arrange the program consists of R. R. Perry, H. K. Taylor, B. R. Joubert and Stuart Tracy, of Winchester. Several members of the committee are descendants of Boone's rescuing party of 1775. Ex-Mayor John E. Garner will respond to the address of welcome, and in addition some of Kentucky's most talented musicians will participate in the exercises.

The Exposition managers will give all necessary aid to make the day a success. There is now no question but that Winchester Day will be one of the best during the Exposition.

The Real Reason.

It is believed by students of affairs in the Far East that the real reason for sending the American battleship fleet to the Pacific has nothing to do with Japan, but that trouble is expected when the Dowager empress of China dies. She is now reported to be in ill health.

Declines With Thanks.

William S. Taylor has declined R. B. Franklin's offer of immunity from arrest provided he comes to Kentucky to testify in the Powers trial. Taylor said his testimony would be of a negative nature only and of no value to the defense.

The Man of The Hour.

The man of the hour is Judge K. M. Landis, of the Federal Court of the Northern District of Illinois.

He fined the greatest combination of industrial facilities the world has ever known—$23,240,000—and called their methods more inimical to society than those of violent criminals.

His decision makes law, and in 7,500 words, rapidly, forcefully read in 55 minutes, he brought the cause of honesty in commercialism from degradation into light, and gives independent operators hope of freedom of competition.

He declares that collusion existed between the Standard Oil Company and the Chicago & Alton road, and called a special grand jury to investigate.

He laid down the principle that if a corporation or railroad accepts goods for interstate shipment beyond its own lines it engages in interstate commerce, and is subject to federal regulations.

Enormous Profits.

The enormous profits of the Standard Oil Company form the basis of a long report by Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations, to President Roosevelt. The report gives the results of an elaborate investigation of prices and profits of the oil industry. Mr. Smith computes that in twenty-four years the Standard Oil Company has made $730,000,000 on an investment of $75,000,000. He charges that the company has resorted to unfair means of competition, and has used its powers to force prices up. He denies that the Standard has in any manner benefited the consumer, and asserts that under free competition the price would be much lower.

Thaw's New Lawyer.

Martin W. Littleton, former president of the borough of Brooklyn and a lawyer and orator of wide reputation, will be chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw when the wealthy young Pittsburger again faces a jury to answer to the charge of killing Stanford White. Thaw announced the selection of Mr. Littleton Saturday after a conference with his mother and his wife. It is said Mr. Littleton's fee will be $25,000.

As chief counsel for Thaw, Mr. Littleton will succeed Delphin M. Delmas, the San Francisco lawyer, who assumed charge of the defense soon after the opening of Thaw's first trial, which resulted in a disagreement of the jury. He is regarded as an able trial lawyer.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Miles of Frankfort have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss May Miles, to Mr. Alexander Murray Williams, of Lexington, Ky., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Williams.

The betrothal will be celebrated very quietly on Sunday, August 11th, at the home of the bride-elect, and the couple will go for a trip to Canada.

Miss Miles has been making her home in Lexington for two or three years with the position of assistant to Mr. H. D. Roberts, from which she resigned about a month ago.

Prof. Wilson was graduated from Purdue University. He has been a member of the faculty of State College for several years and has won many prizes as in Lexington during his residence there. The bride-to-be is well known here, having frequently visited Paris friends.

Court Day.

A small crowd in town yesterday and no trading worthy of mention. There was only one mule on the market and it was purchased by McClintock & Sons from Clarence Wright.

There were about 1,000 sheep at Murphy's pens. Five hundred sold at from $8 to $8.50 per head, and 375 cattle, 350 of them selling at from $17 to $35 per head.

THE BAY HORSE.

The bay colored horse is said to be the swiftest of all the horses. A story to illustrate this is told of a certain Arab sheik who, having been engaged in a fight with another tribe, was taking his flight with his little son.

They were both mounted on a magnificent white mare which belonged to the sheik and which had always been highly valued on account of the great speed at which it could go. After having ridden some little distance the sheik asked his son to look around and see if they were being followed. The boy replied that there was some one riding after them on a black horse. The sheik seemed satisfied on hearing this report, but presently repeated his question. The boy answered that they were still being pursued, but that this time the horse was white. "Never mind," said the father; "mine is faster."

In a few minutes he asked for a further report, and the reply was the same, with the difference that the horse was a chestnut. The sheik, however, put his question a fourth time, but upon being told by his son that the pursuer was mounted on a bay he cried out, "Then we are lost, for there is no horse which it cannot overtake." His words proved to be true, for in a short time they were caught up with and captured.

LEATHER BOUND BOOKS.

A Little Vaseline Improves and Preserves the Binding.

An official of the Congressional library was talking with a friend who recently had purchased a handsome set of leather bound volumes and said:

"You had better examine those volumes carefully to see if the leather needs feeding. If it is new stock they will be all right let alone for several years, but if they have been on the shelves for some time the leather will have lost most of its natural oil and become brittle. This applies especially to books kept in private houses, which are as a rule much hotter than the book stacks of a large library. There is nothing more attractive than a fresh, well preserved leather binding on a volume and scarcely anything less so than a dilapidated, cracked one."

"You can add years to the life of a leather binding and a hundred per cent to its appearance by rubbing in a little vaseline with a piece of raw cotton—not too much, just as much as the leather will thoroughly absorb. Where the binding bends is where it is most likely to crack. The leather will not be greasy, as the vaseline will be absorbed. One treatment every year or two is sufficient unless the books are unduly exposed to heat."—Washington Star.

Within Her Rights.

A very black woman in a silver gray automobile coat was seen a few mornings ago hauling an unwilling and respectable looking yellow dog by a leather thong.

A friendly disposed policeman asked casually: "Why don't you turn the dog loose? He don't look able to run off, and nobody'll want to steal him?"

"Ain't I a woman?" was the tart query.

There was no disputing the fact.

"Ain't dis heah a dog?"

Patent fact.

"Ain't dis heah New York?"

Obviously true.

"Well, ain't I got a good right to walk on dese heah streets and put on all the style I choose?"

No disputing a self evident proposition.—New York Times.

Impartial.

An English clergyman, recently settled in a small town in Perthshire, met a farmer's boy while visiting the members of his congregation. In the course of conversation the boy said his parents had an aunt staying with them. The parson, not having much acquaintance with the Scottish language and not quite comprehending what the boy said, asked:

"Then, do I understand that your aunt is on your father's side or on your mother's?"

To which the young agriculturist replied:

"Weel, whiles the aye an whiles the ither, excep' when feyther leathers them bairn."—Dundee Advertiser.

Section Hand Killed.

James Crow, 18 years old, was killed at 6 o'clock Saturday morning by an L. & N. wrecking train, on the Maysville division, near Carlisle. Crow and his father, Michael Crow, foreman of that section of the road, were on a hand-car going to work. A special train was running around a sharp curve. All the section hands on the hand-car jumped and escaped without being hurt. Crow's body was mangled and his head and limbs severed.

May Lose Eyesight.

Ed. Feedback, an employee of the East Tennessee Telephone Company, met with an accident several days ago that may cause him to go blind. Mr. Feedback had lost one of his eyes several years ago and while driving down Main street about 10 days ago, he attempted to strike the horse with his whip when the crack of the whip hit him in his good eye. He has been totally blind since the accident and Dr. Norris, of Lexington, says it is doubtful whether he will regain his eyesight.

Democratic Committee Meets.

The Bourbon County Democratic Committee met yesterday afternoon in the County Court room. They selected the names of the following gentlemen to be sent to the State Board of Election Commissioners, that Board to select one from the number to be Commissioner from Bourbon county: W. D. McIntyre, Ed. Rice, R. O. Turner, B. B. Marsh and G. W. Morrow. The Committee also named Judge Denis Dundon, Deputy Sheriff A. S. Thompson and H. O. James as the Bourbon County Campaign Committee.

Scared at Auto.

Henry Lee, a young colored boy, was driving on Seventh street Saturday about dark, when his mare became frightened at an automobile. The boy could not hold the mare and she turned down High street at record breaking speed.

The nery driver kept her in the street until opposite Mr. Geo. W. Davis' residence, when the buggy collided with the gas post. The mare was freed from harness by the collision and never stopped. It was a miracle that the boy was not killed, but he immediately sprang from the wreck of the buggy and started running after the mare. He soon appeared with the runaway, neither being hurt in the least. The buggy will have to be rebuilt.

Paris Has a William Tell.

To prove his marksmanship to his father, Norwood Stitt, aged 12 years, at 50 paces, Saturday, pierced the hat of his father, Judge Harmon Stitt, with a bullet without touching a hair on the Judge's head.

Judge Stitt and the lad were in the yard at Stitt's residence on Second street, and the boy, while handling a revolver, was joked by his father, who said, "You can't shoot."

The boy replied, "I can shoot the hat off your head."
"I dare you," said the Judge, and the boy shot the bullet with marvelous precision. Since the occurrence he is called William Tell II. The father, however, has decided to indulge in no "kidding" as to the youth's marksmanship in future, and is very well satisfied in getting off with a hole in his hat.

First Case in Bourbon Juvenile Court.

Judge Denis Dundon held his first Juvenile Court Saturday. It was a case styled S. E. Borland vs. Scott Brandenburg. About eight months ago a Mrs. Blackburn died in this city and left a number of orphan children in extreme destitute condition. In the kindness of heart several of the neighbors of the deceased woman, living on Walker's avenue, took several of the smaller children to raise. Mrs. S. E. Borland was one of these good women who took a little girl 5-years-old. She has cared for the little thing like she would have cared for one of her own.

Scott Brandenburg, who married a half-sister of the child appeared upon the scene last week and took the child from Mrs. Borland and gave it to a family in the remote north end of the county, some distance from a school or church. A petition was then filed in the Juvenile Court by S. E. Borland to regain the possession of the child.

The Court decided in favor of Mrs. Borland and the child was returned to her.

Mrs. Sweeney Ray also has one of these children, which she is rearing. Both of these good-hearted women have become attached to their little wards and we do not believe any Court would take them away from their good homes.

Goethe's Last Moments.

The story of the deathbed of Goethe reveals a striking picture of fortitude, artistic calm and intellectual activity under the chilling dews of death. The information is gathered from a letter written on March 23, 1832, the day after Goethe's death, by Fraulein Louise Seidler, an art student and close friend of the poet's family. On the evening before his dissolution, with an icy coldness taking possession of him and the death rattle beginning to be audible, Goethe, with his charming daughter-in-law by his side, would talk of nothing but his pet theory of color, of the treaty of Basle, of his desire that the children should go to the theater, of his plans for the near future. As sleep did not come with the night, he called for a newly published volume of history, and covered his inability to read it with a joke. Even at 7 o'clock the next morning, just three and a half hours before he died, he sent for a portfolio to talk optics and was setting himself to classify some papers when the last agony seized him. He then lay motionless, notwithstanding its violence, till respiration ceased and the heart stood still.—London Globe.

How to Handle Your Horse.

Decision should never in handling horses be confounded with unwise determination to have things your way. In this application it means the faculty of doing the right thing at the right instant and may be cultivated by frequent practice with all sorts of horses, and of course no hands were ever developed by handling any one animal or any one kind of a horse. It is decision that gives the hand the moment the horse yields; that uses the roughest methods at a pinch, for hands are by no means always delicate of touch; that frustrates the most determined attempts of kicker, rearer or bolter; that picks the best road; that makes the animal carry himself to the best advantage for the purpose of the moment. Decision is very close to intuition in effect. Decision dominates the situation at many critical moments, and the horse is quick to discern and to presume upon its absence. There is no such thing as a safe partnership with a horse. You must be the master or he will be, to your certain future discomfiture.—F. M. Ware in Oving Magazine.

Big Benefits at London Theaters.

Betterton, in 1700, when his salary was £4 a week, had a benefit and received £76 as his share of the receipts and £450 in the shape of donations. The biggest benefit performances of modern times have taken place at Drury Lane. That for Ben Webster, held in March, 1874, realized £2,000; the profit on the Buckstone celebration, in June, 1876, was £1,200; for the Nellie Farrer benefit performance, in March, 1898, there was obtained £7,260, though half of this amount was secured from private donations, which flowed in when it was known that the Messrs. Rothschild had volunteered to invest what sum was realized, give the popular comedienne an annuity and, on her death, grant the theatrical charities half of the capital.—London Chronicle.

To Insure Privacy of Mail.

All private and confidential correspondence, according to a postoffice inspector, should either be sealed with wax or else addressed and stamped on the back instead of the front. Sealing with wax is an excellent insurance of privacy, but it is a difficult and awkward operation, and wax and a match, candle and seal are not always at hand. The other method is much the better. After fastening down the flap of the envelope firmly, affix the stamp across the flap's junction and write the address across it as well. Then it is absolutely impossible to steam open the letter and close it again in such a way as to escape detection.

The Creole.

A pure creole is a person born in Louisiana of French or Spanish parents. It is a mistaken idea to suppose that a creole has negro blood in his veins. A creole negro is one whose forefathers were owned by the early French and Spanish settlers and who spoke a corruption of those languages known as "gumbo." Their descendants are the creole negroes and should never be confused with creoles in the true sense of the term.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Why, Indeed?

At an examination of Sunday school children the following was one of the questions put upon the blackboard: "Why did your godfathers and godmothers promise these things for you?" The answer of a bright girl, written neatly on the slate, was, "Why, indeed?" She got marks.—Christian Life.

Not to Blame.

Father (sternly)—Now, Sophia, something must be done to reduce your expenses. You are actually spending more than your allowance.

Daughter—It isn't my fault, father. I've done my best to get you to increase it.—Brooklyn Life.

Doubtful.

Lady (in dry goods store)—And is this color also genuine? Salesman—As genuine as the roses on your cheeks, miss. Lady—If I'm! Show me another one.—Kleines Witzblatt.

Just Badness.

Father—That kid ought to have a spanking! He's altogether too precocious; knows more than I do! Mother—But, dear, I wouldn't call that precocious.—Detroit Free Press.

Only the illiterate and the social elect can afford to treat the language recklessly.—Bramera.

A CULTURED BASS.

Higher Education Was the Ruin of This Intelligent Fish.

"Bass are intelligent little beasts. That is the reason they travel in schools," remarked Walter Dimpling, an authority on fishing and a candidate for the nature fakir class.

"I have frequently observed them studying," he continued, "whether it was better taste to swallow a minnow whole or on the installment plan. I have seen them seek knowledge concerning rubber frogs and, having made up their minds that it was a false friend, go off and warn their comrades.

"I have seen them studying weather conditions, coming to the surface, gazing intently at the sky, finding the direction of the wind and satisfying themselves whether tomorrow would be clear or rainy.

"All real fishermen can vouch for the statement that bass are fond of children. I have seen them eat up the little ones.

"Bass are natural defenders of the home life, and when a carp or catfish comes browsing around to devour the eggs the female had laid the male will attack the intruder by swimming under the enemy and slashing him with the sharp dorsal spine.

"I once knew a bass so intelligent that it refused to bite on the ordinary bait and was only caught after a page from an encyclopedia had been tied to the hook. Higher education was his finish."—Philadelphia North American.

IN THE SAME BOAT.

A Story of Samuel Warren and Matthew Davenport Hill.

Sam Warren, the author of "Ten Thousand a Year," has been the subject of many anecdotes, none of them better than one which I first heard related about him by his friend, Matthew Davenport Hill.

Looking in one day at Warren's chambers, Hill noticed that he seemed a little troubled. "It is," said the lawyer-novelist, "most unfortunate. I ought to have dined tonight with the lord chancellor, but Mrs. Warren is about to present me with another olive branch. How can I leave her? I hope his lordship won't be annoyed at my putting him off." "Oh," returned Hill, "don't make yourself uneasy. I am one of the guests. I know him so well I can put it all right for you." With these words the visitor prepared to leave the room.

At first profusely grateful, Warren presently seemed a little perplexed and said: "By the bye, after all, I won't trouble you to say anything about me to the chancellor. Between ourselves, I have not been invited."

"Well," rejoined Hill, "make yourself comfortable on that point. For that matter, neither have I."—Pall Mall Gazette.

To Cure Blushing.

"A great many men blush," said a physician; "some so painfully that they come to me to be cured."

"The cure I recommend is an odd one. It is the abandonment of over-heavy clothing, especially of woolen socks. Amazing it is how many male blushers have a predilection for thick socks of wool.

"But some blushers wear light enough clothes. To them I can only recommend a nerve treatment. I advise them to make speeches at banquets, to be witnesses in murder trials, to go to teas and dances, to develop, in short, the nerve as a wrestler develops his muscle.

"Blushing is a difficult disorder to cure. As a rule it passes away of itself when the victim reaches his thirtieth year."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Lying.

It was said of Dr. Johnson that he always talked as though he were taking an oath. He detested the habit of lying or prevaricating in the slightest degree and would not allow his servants to say he was not at home if he was. "A servant's strict regard for the truth," said he, "must be weakened by such a practice. If I accustom my servant to tell a lie for me, have I not reason to apprehend that he will tell it for himself?" A strict adherence to truth the doctor considered as a sacred obligation, and in relating the smallest anecdote he would not allow himself the minutest addition to embellish his story.

The Transformed Pythagorean.

Some undergraduates once wished to play a practical joke upon a man who was a disciple of Pythagoras, so one day when he was a little sleepy by reason of the amount of brandy and soda that he had imbibed his friends smeared him with honey and rolled him in the inside of a feather bed. When the disciple of Pythagoras got up in the morning he looked in the looking glass at himself and said slowly, with a whistle, "Bird, by Jove!"—London Telegraph.

Love and Hate.

Love once more; perhaps this time you may succeed in being loved back again.

Enemies are only useful as long as you are rising. Once at the top you must do away with them by making them your friends.—Epigrams of Queen Elizabeth (Carmen Sylva).

Making Sure.

Dentist—I've filled all of your teeth that have cavities, sir.

Mahoney—Well, then, fill 'em 'r ist av 'em, too; thin 'em 'r cavities come they'll be already filled, b'gods!—London Tit-Bits.

The first farmer was the first man, and all historic nobility rests on possession and use of land.—Emerson.

Akin to Love

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

The door of room 14, primary department, opened very slowly, very contritely, and a small, anxious, freckled face peeped in. Miss Orvis turned from the blackboard at a smothered giggle from the children and saw the freckled face.

"Come in, Hardy." The curving line of her pretty, sympathetic mouth straightened with sudden determination. It was the fourth time that week that Hardy Andrews had come in late, and even the children were beginning to look upon it as a joke. Discipline must be enforced, even when the delinquent is only seven and a half. Miss Orvis left the blackboard with "I see a bird" half finished and stepped forward to meet Hardy.

He was smiling comfortably in his half shy, half roguish way and flirting openly with Marguerite Maguire in the front seat.

"Hardy, you are late again."

"Yessum," said Hardy happily.

"It's the fourth time this week, Hardy. Have you any excuse?"

"No'm." Hardy rubbed one shoe over the toe of the other and tried to jam his stockinet cap into his side trousers pocket.

"Why didn't your mother write one for you?"

It was so still in the large, sunny schoolroom you could hear the clock tick high up on the wall and the buzzing of the flies over near the open window where the rows of geraniums stood, but slowly the color mounted in Hardy's little, thin, freckled face, and after a minute he looked up at Miss Orvis, his big blue eyes filled with a half apologetic bewilderment.

"I never had any mother." The silence was worse than ever. Miss Orvis caught her breath and looked at the rest of the children to see what horrible effect the announcement had made on them, but they were only interested and joyous over the diversion. Hardy caught the look and hastened to cover his mistake.

"But I got a father, Miss Orvis, all right. I'm Reddy Lane's kid, and Reddy's a watchman over on the bridge at night, and he don't get home till most 10 o'clock in the morning, and that's why I'm late, 'cause I like to have breakfast with him."

Miss Orvis hesitated, but the blue eyes pleaded well their cause, and she smiled as she laid one hand on Reddy Lane's kid's head.

But somehow all the morning she caught herself musing on the child who had no mother. It was a tragedy, of course—some stormy, tear swept page of life from the great city's underworld and only this bit of wreckage left to tell the story. Tears welled to her own lashes once or twice as she watched Hardy's small, eager face, so trusting and foolishly happy when he had nothing in the whole world to be happy for except the mere fact that he was alive.

As the lines were forming at noon she touched Hardy on the shoulder and told him to wait a minute at her desk, and the little fellow obeyed, watching the rest of the boys proudly from his post on teacher's chair. And when all was still in the great building Miss Orvis came back and took him on her lap.

"Your papa's a watchman, you say, dear, over on the bridge?" she began, but Hardy interposed hastily.

"Oh, no, not my father—that's Reddy. I never had any father. I'm a foundling kid, Reddy says, and his mother rented me, and then she died, and Reddy adopted me his own self, so now I'm his kid."

"Oh, I see," Miss Orvis leaned back in her chair and gazed at the cheerful little face. "And you and Reddy live on Cherry street?"

"Yessum. We got a room with the Battersons, a whole room of our own, just for Reddy and me. And the Battersons have only got one room left for their own selves, and there's six of 'em."

"You don't say so?" Miss Orvis caught the lonesome little figure close in her arms. "Is—Is Reddy good to you?"

"You let he is," came the smothered gasp from her shoulder. "He never hits me, and he takes me out on the big bridge with him nights and lets me see the lights on the river and the boats and the trains and everything. He's fine to me. When I said you sould me 'cause I was late, he said it was a—shame."

There was a sudden noise at the door behind them, a queer hasty noise, half a cough, half a choked explosion of laughter, and Miss Orvis stood up quickly.

"Hello, Red! This is teacher."

It was the only introduction they ever had, those two, and neither ever forgot the moment. Flushing to the curls of her soft dark hair, Pauline Orvis saw before her Reddy Lane of Cherry street. He was tall and broad shouldered, this watchman on the big bridge, blue eyed, with keen, unswerving gaze, strong jawed, with a mouth close lipped and short fair hair that curled crisply back from his young, resolute face. In his navy blue sweater he looked like a college boy, but the hands that held his cap were the hands of the toiler.

"I jest run around after the kid there," he explained, lowering his voice as if he were in a snootery. "He's always home as soon as the rest, and I'm worried when he don't show up."

They don't leave enough of a little chap like that to shovel up after a street car fender rolls him under, and I get fussy when he don't hustle in. I didn't know you'd kept him. What's the row?"

"Why, nothing, nothing at all," Miss Orvis said hurriedly. Just why she should be excited or confused over a caller from Cherry street she could not have told herself, but the steady, anxious, admiring gaze of Reddy's blue eyes was disturbing her customary tranquillity and dignity. "I was only having a quiet little chat with Hardy. I wondered why he was late so often."

"It's my fault," protested Reddy hastily. "You see, ma'am, I'm up all night on the bridge, and I don't get home till about 9, and the kid here likes to eat with me. The Battersons never give him anything, and it's up to me to see that he gets his feed. And I don't want him to go to school hungry."

"No, indeed," said Miss Orvis emphatically. Then she hesitated. Hardy had rambled over to the colored charts and was busy. She lowered her voice as she asked, "Hasn't he any one at all—I mean any one of his own people?"

"No, ma'am," Reddy answered earnestly. "My mother got him out of the foundlings when he was about two months old. They lets the kids out up there, you know, two-fifty a week, and the old lady thinks maybe it would be company for her with me away nights. His father took a tumble off a ferry-boat, and just as she was leaving Hardy up at the foundlings his mother flopped all to once and died too. So I took him when my mother died last winter, and the two of us has bachelors' hall over on Cherry street."

"It was very kind of you," Miss Orvis tried to say more, but the words would not come. It was all so brief, so simple and awful, this little tragedy of the very poor man.

"I haven't been sorry I did it. There's always enough for him, and I'd like to give him a chance. He's thronged all right."

"Perhaps I can help, too," said Miss Orvis hesitatingly, half shyly. "I'd like to ever so much."

Reddy's clear, anxious eyes looked at her longingly. In her trim, girlish way, with the glamour of another world about her, a world apart from the "bridge" and Cherry street, she seemed to typify all he wanted his little thronged to attain.

"I could take him with me over to the settlement," she went on, "any evening or afternoon perhaps," with a swift uplift of her long lashes at him. "Perhaps you might like it, too, Mr. Lane?"

Like it? Reddy walked on tiptoe all the way downstairs, his eyes still full of a wonder like those of a dream haunted child, and Hardy had to dodge the trolleys himself at the Bowery crossing.

The next night as Pauline Orvis went up the steps of the Endeavor settlement she found the two already there, waiting patiently. And as she laid her hand in the warm, strong grip of Reddy Lane she felt as though fate had laid a trap for love, with sympathy as snare.

And after that night a queer thing happened to the teacher in room 14. Every morning as she stood at the head of the stairs, with the two lines of small boys passing her, all at once the color would rise in her cheeks as Hardy drew near, for not a single morning passed that he did not bear a love offering of fresh violets. He confided to her the very first morning where they came from.

"Red gets them from an old man on the bridge every morning fresh. He says they look like you."

One night toward the end of June they stood out on the stone balcony of the settlement house, looking down on the crowds passing below along the highway of push carts. Miss Orvis was pleading the cause of Hardy.

"Let me take him with me for the summer," she begged. "It has done him so much good, being with me—"

"Some one else, too," murmured Reddy, but she went on:

"I am going to the mountains, and he would be so much company for me. Besides, it will give you time to study if—that is, if—she hesitated and bent farther away from him over the broad, low parapet—"if you really intend talking the civil engineering course."

"You know what I intend doing," he interrupted. "You know just as well as I do what you've done for the little chap and me. Of course he can go with you. I suppose I may run up now and then just to see how he's getting on."

"Oh, of course." Her voice was low and without invitation.

"And if I pass and get the Harrison appointment this fall, why, it's you that's to blame."

"Blame?" The word left her startled and vaguely frightened.

"That's what I said. You've taken and encouraged me the same as you have the boy and made both of us love you to death. Oh, you know it's so all right. And if I do win out and make something of myself it's you that made me try and feel it was worth while. Before I was only thinking of the boy and working for him, but now—"

"Yes?" He could hardly catch her whisper, but his hand suddenly crushed over hers as it lay lightly beside him.

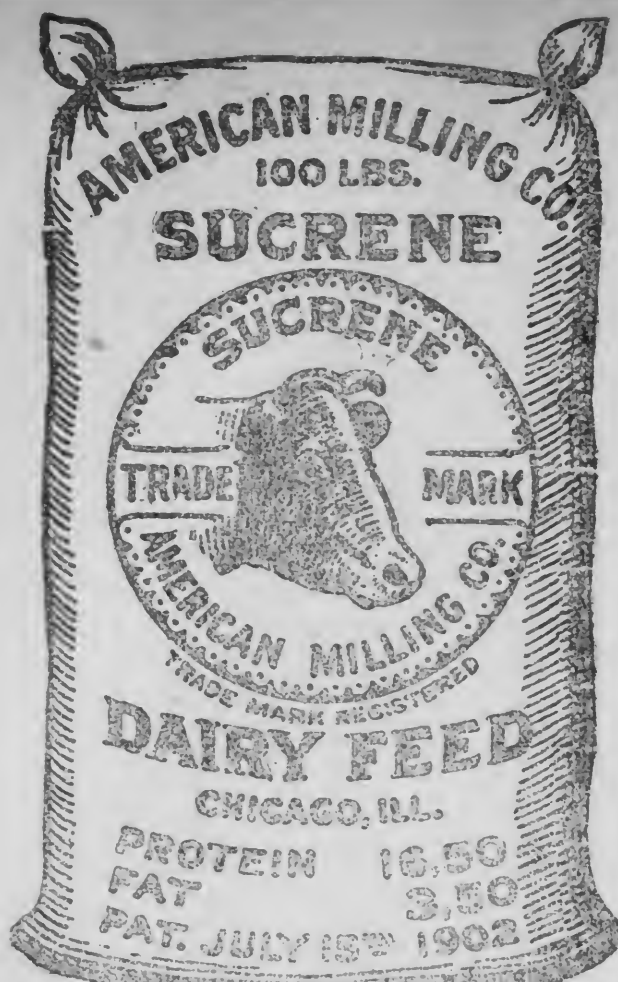

"Now it's for you and me. Can I come if I win the appointment?"

Down in the street below some one was playing on a harp, while a ring of children danced and sang the chorus of a popular song. The words floated up to the shadowy balcony:

"Life is so short that when we die 'Tis time enough to say goodby."

She turned her face to his.

"Come anyway," she said.

LAMP CLOCKS.

They Were Quite Common In The Seventeenth Century.

Of the various examples that have been given of early specimens of the clockmaker's art not the least interesting are the several types of lamp clocks. One of these was of a kind quite common in the seventeenth century and consisted of a lamp burner placed at the base of a glass oil receptacle mounted vertically on a suitable standard. The oil reservoir had attached to it a scale facing the burner and showing the hours, beginning at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the lamp was to be lighted in winter, and ending at 7 o'clock in the morning. The lamp being lighted, the gradually descending level of the oil as combustion proceeded marked the hours.

The other device, of later origin, dating back to the beginning of the last century, utilized the same principle. It consisted of two communicating oil chambers, superposed by a clock dial. In one of the chambers was placed a night lamp to illuminate this dial, and in the other was suspended a float from a cord which passed around a small pulley. The latter was mounted on a horizontal axis ending in the center of the dial. The float of course descended as the oil was consumed and carried the index hand along with it, thus marking the hours precisely as in the case already cited.—Pearson's Weekly.

PURE WATER.

The One Beverage That Is The Same Yesterday, Today and Forever.

Water is the king of beverages. It is the beverage to which all turn when they would cure themselves of the injurious habit of consuming other beverages. But water that is not pure may be more harmful than the most harmful of other drinks.

Water is the basis of all other beverages. All beverages of man's manufacture are water that has been adulterated by admixtures and chemical treatment.

Pure water is the one beverage which has stood the test of science and come down to us unscathed through continuous use for countless ages. It is nature's chiefest blessing to man. Other beverages undergo many changes with time. Each age brings them forth in new styles, new methods of manufacture, new processes of chemical treatment, aging and keeping. Foods change with each successive generation. We eat different kinds of foods from time to time. Each generation prepares them differently. There are different methods of compounding them, different methods of cooking them. Pure water is the same yesterday, today and forever.—What to Eat.

Scotland.

Prior to the year 254, which witnessed its invasion by the Scots, a tribe who inhabited the northern portions of the country now known as Ireland, Scotland bore the name of Caledonia, literally the hilly country of the Gaels, or Gaels. The word Gael, or gael, is a corruption of Gadhel, signifying in the native tongue "a hidden rover," while Scot, derived from the native Gaelic, means practically the same thing—i. e., a wanderer. The Caledonians were the inhabitants of the highlands, the terminology expressing the Celtic for hill, fort, stronghold. The Scots were the invaders from Scotia, who appropriated the Highlands and western islands, whereas the lowlanders were the Picts, so called from their description by the Romans, picti, painted men.—Names and Their Meaning.

Nero and His Voice.

In an interesting paper M. Moure and M. Benier relate the extraordinary care which the Emperor Nero took of his voice. At night Nero lay on his back, with a thin plate of lead on his stomach. He abstained from fruits and all dishes which could hurt his voice. In order not to damage the purity of his sound he ceased haranguing the soldiers and the senate. He attached to his service an officer specially deputed to take care of his voice. He talked only in the presence of this singular official, who warned him when he spoke too loudly or forced his voice, and if the emperor, carried away by some sudden fit of passion, did not listen to his remonstrances it was his duty to stop his mouth with a napkin.—Modern Medicine.

Bananas.

"Bananas," says an authority, "are by millions of people eaten, green or ripe, raw or cooked, are served in all ways in which apples, grains and potatoes are used and are palatable, healthful and nutritious in every way in which they are prepared. They make excellent bread, cakes and pies, puddings, confectionery and coffee substitutes, yield brandy, beer, vinegar, sugar, oil and fibers. They are bought as a luxury by millions who may use them as a staple food. Yet they may be grown profitably in a small area only. Therefore banana culture affords a perfectly safe and gainful use of time and money."

A Cold Turn-down.

"Bridget," Mrs. Housekeeper called down to her servant, "I see Mrs. Gaddis coming across the street. Run out and turn that door mat upside down." "Which one, ma'am?" asked Bridget. "The one that has 'Welcome' on it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Contradiction.

Tommy—Does it make any difference if baby takes all his medicine at once? Baby's mother (in horror)—Good heavens! Of course it does! Tommy—But it hasn't made any difference.—Punch.

No protecting deities are wanted if there is prudence.—Juvenal.

The Caserta Camellia Tree.

In the days of its glory the palace at Caserta of the king of Naples had among its features a so called English garden, made in 1782 by order of Marie Caroline of Austria. It was bright with flowers and wonderful rare oriental plants and trees, so that it was renowned throughout the world, but the crown and glory of all consisted in a camellia tree, a plant then unknown in Europe. The seeds were collected as though flakes of gold, and the queen used to give them and cuttings of this camellia as presents to her friends. These cuttings were most highly prized, and thus it has become a European flower, so much so that the exportation of camellias is an extensive industry in central Italy, and in Germany there are vast fields of them. In its palmy days the Caserta plant had eight branches, the largest of which was twelve inches in diameter, the whole being thirty feet high. This mother plant was in a flourishing condition up to a few years ago, but lately the gorgeous garden has been allowed to fall into decay, and with it the glorious camellia.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Rewards of Literature.

A very talented and well known writer—successful, too, in the popular estimation—tells me: "I know a man who spent fifteen years' leisure in getting the material for his best book and writing it over three times, then offered it to almost every publisher in America, meeting with refusal by all, and finally sold it to a London publisher for £50, had it republished in America some years afterward, got a few dollars before the publishers failed and as his last royalty received just 2 cents, which was exactly 10 per cent of the last sum due him. I am the man, but I don't publish the fact nor feel inclined to brag about it nor to complain, for that would be useless and would only cheapen my wares in the literary market. The book paid me, by accurate calculation, 33 1/3 cents a week for the fifteen years' work."—Papyrus.

Birds Have Favorite Plants.

Like man, birds have their favorite plants. It has been discovered that the goldfinch is passionately fond of apple blossom. This may be because its favorite building site is in the hedges covered with apple trees, but apart from such attachment the bright little finch frequently spends hours tearing the petals into tiny fragments. Though the nightingale never builds in the thorn hedges, it loves to sing on may laden branches, often in the very midst of the fragrant blossoms. It is somewhat peculiar that most birds avoid the cow parsnip, owing, no doubt, to the unpleasant greenish smell emitted by this unbeloved plant. Small birds very often build in less secure places, but the parsnip, gigantic and strong as it is, is left severely alone.—London Opinion.

What Makes the Trout Shy?

The shyness of the summer trout of the still springhole is due not entirely to his keen eye trained by the quietude of transparent waters. It is to be credited more to his gregariousness. The cool places and deeper pools of the trout stream are apt to be few and live the fish in schools. If the school number, say, fifty fish it means a hundred watchful eyes and a collective shyness adjusted to that of the most timid fish of the fifty, whose sudden dash to safety gives the warning signal to all. A single nervous trout—and there are usually several—is thus enough to scatter a big school in a flash and baffle the hopes of the angler.—Clarence Denning in Outing Magazine.

Tobacco Leaves.

A scientist writes: "The essential quality for which tobacco is smoked or chewed lies not really in the leaves themselves, but is contained in thousands of hollow knobbed hairs which cover their surface. The vital nicotine is garnered in these pear-like balls, but as it is impossible to shave off these hairs and would be a scarcely commendable achievement if it could be undertaken it becomes necessary to preserve the whole foliage for commercial purposes."

Where the Money Came From.

Batchelor—That's a good cigar you're smoking, Poppley—Yes, that's a fine center you gave me. Batchelor—I gave you? I guess not. Poppley—Oh, yes, I'm sure it was your money paid for it. The only money I found in our baby's bank this morning was the dime you put in yesterday.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The One Rule.

At a club where card playing was prohibited four members smuggled in a pack and, calling the waiter aside, asked him if he had ever known the rule broken. His reply was, "All the years I have been here I have known every rule broken except one—that of giving of tips." The game proceeded.

Thoughtful.

"Are you sure the sick man wanted me?" asked the physician, reaching for his hat. "He didn't mention your name, but he's scream'n' for some one that'll put him out of his misery, and I thought of you right away."—Houston Post.

Didn't Wait.

"Were you frightened when you arose to make your first speech?" "What should frighten me?" "The audience." "The audience left as soon as my name was announced."

A Hopeless Case.

"I am in favor of spelling reform." "Glad to hear it. Come around and give my stenographer a few points, won't you?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. Wo protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Knabenshue Airship Will Certainly Be On Hand at the Blue-Grass Fair at Lexington.

Due to the fact that the Kentucky State Fair has advertised that the only appearance of a Knabenshue passenger-carrying airship in Kentucky and Southern Indiana would be at Louisville during the week of the State Fair, some misapprehension has arisen in the minds of the general public as to whether or not a Knabenshue airship will appear at the Blue Grass Fair the week of August 12 to 17, as advertised. It should be understood that there has been no misrepresentation of any sort by the management of the Blue Grass Fair, nor has there been any misstatement by the management of the Kentucky State Fair. The fact is that the passenger-carrying airship which will appear at the State Fair is a different ship from that which will appear at the Blue Grass Fair. Both of them, however, are Knabenshue ships, possessing all the excellence which the name "Knabenshue" carries with it. The ship that will be at the Blue Grass Fair is one that has been proven by numerous flights to be entirely successful, while the one that will appear at the State Fair is a more recent production of Mr. Knabenshue that has thus far made few appearances. The Knabenshue ship will certainly be on hand the week of August 12th to 17th at Lexington and will make one or more ascents daily. The general public should not be confused by these apparently contradictory, but really authentic announcements by the management of both fairs.

Sometimes Does Harm.

Bishop John H. Vincent, of the Methodist church, created quite a sensation among the ministers in attendance at the Chautauqua at Coffeyville, Kansas, by attacking the evangelistic system now in vogue in most of the churches of his denomination. Bishop Vincent believes that revivals produce only temporary good, and that on account of the sensational methods used in so many of them the bad effects more than offset the good. The venerable bishop expressed himself as standing "for genuine evangelistic effort under discreet direction," but protests with emphasis against all sensationalism and sporadic efforts to create an ill-balanced emotionalism and mere temporary devices for exciting enthusiasm.

Traction Companies Consolidate.

Nearly every small city in Central Kentucky is to be connected with Lexington by trolley, according to the plans of a new company formed at Lexington by the consolidation of the two traction companies now operating lines outside of Lexington. The capital stock of the new company is $450,000 and the lines will reach as far south as Danville and Harrodsburg.

May Be Tried Again.

Attorneys for the prosecution have several decisions of the Kentucky Court of Appeals and the courts of other States sustaining their contention that Judge James Hargis was not necessarily in jeopardy because the jury was sworn at the Sandy Hook trial before the prosecution's officers withdrew from the case. They believe that when the case is tried before the Court of Appeals a new trial will be ordered and that the Breathitt leader will face a jury on the charge of conspiracy to murder Dr. Cox.

Whisky Barrels Advance In Price

It is stated on authority that new whisky barrels will sell higher during the coming season than at any time during recent years, the cause being due to the scarcity of white oak from which Bourbon barrels are exclusively made. During the last distilling season the price of whisky barrels took an increase ranging from $3.25 to $3.75, but the indication is that a higher price will have to be paid this year than ever before. It is expected that by the opening of the coming season $4 will have to be paid, and that possibly the price will go as high as $4.50 before the season is over. There is also some fear that even the coöperation may run short.

New Race Track For Louisville.

Another race track for Louisville is the latest project, which was made known by the option being taken on 250 acres of land south of Louisville by Auctioneer W. W. Davies for $120,000. The parties interested in the project were not made known by Mr. Davies, but it is authoritatively stated that Louisville and New York capitalists are behind the enterprise. A company has been formed with a capitalization of $500,000. Three hundred thousand dollars in addition to the purchase price of $120,000 will be spent on improvements and beautifying the grounds. He is now in New York to close the matter up.

This track is to be built because it is feared that Churchill Downs is soon to be annexed under Bingham's administration, which would stop pool selling and probably be the death of racing. Churchill Downs will probably be cut up into building lots.

Let Me Do Your Plumbing.

When you get ready to put in your bath room let me figure with you. If my work is satisfactory tell others, if not tell me. All work guaranteed. Shop 606 Main street—both phones. JOHN MERRINGER.

Plan To Stop Feud.

Feuds in Breathitt county will soon be a thing of the past if the best class of citizens of Jackson can work out the plan they have decided on. The plan is to secure positions out of Kentucky for all of the feudists who are likely to bring up the old trouble.

Tom Cockrell, the oldest member of the Cockrell faction of the Hargis-Cockrell feud, has decided to leave Kentucky and has secured a position on the Great Northern railroad with headquarters at Grand Fork, N. D.

He left for the new country last week and will be followed this week by his wife. The Breathitt county citizens are dead in earnest to make the plans a success, and stop the feuds that have disgraced that county.

Wheat Wanted.

Adopting Cash System.

All over the State business men generally are forming associations to do away with the extensive credit system so long the downfall of many merchants. Business conditions of the present day do not warrant the granting of credit on six and twelve months time, and really there is no necessity for it. Expenses of conducting business have largely increased in every branch, and the close margin at which goods are now sold do not warrant the continuance of the old "pay me when you can" credit system.

Attractions Booked By Manager Borland.

Manager Borland, of the Paris Grand, ever on the lookout for good attractions, has booked the following to appear this season: "Parsifal," "Rajah of Bong," "Sweetest Girl in Dixie," Coburn's Minstrels, "Metz" Wilson, the great German Comedian, "A Texas Steer," "A Dangerous Friend," "Faust," with Porter J. White, "Monte Cristo," "On the Bridge at Midnight," "The Lunatic and the Lady," "As Told in the Hills," "In Old Kentucky," "The Hustler," "The Holy City," "The Merchant of Venice," "Quincy Adams Sawyer," "A Daughter of Judea," "Ma's New Husband," "My Wife's Family," "Checkers," "Cole and Johnson," Tom Waters in "The Mayor of Laughland," "The Great Train Robbers," "Peggy from Paris," Donnelly & Hatfield Minstrels, "Buster Brown," "Zira" with Mabel Montgomery, "The Show Girl" and many other good ones. The above is only a partial list of the excellent attractions booked by Manager Borland and he has a number of surprises in store for the patrons of the Grand.

High Prices Will Come.

It is becoming more and more evident that the people of this country will be facing a problem before the close of the century that they do not generally contemplate. The population of this country and of the world is increasing fast with no prospect of abatement. Should it go on at the present rate for twenty years the United States will have more than one hundred million people. Statistics show that the per centage of live stock is decreasing. Our herds are about at a standstill while the number to be fed is constantly increasing. This must mean higher priced meat products, there can be no other solution of the problem, unless the people take kindly to some substitute which can only be brought about by dire necessity, and were this to come about the food product used would increase in value the same as meat. Not only do such conditions mean higher prices eventually for meat, but cereals also must be included, as well as every other good product. There are just so many acres of land on the globe and there can never be more. True, the acres can be made to produce much more than at present, but that is the limit, and long before it is reached the demand for food will gradually force prices of everything up to a higher notch. All food must come from the soil, but with a limited area, coupled with the constant decrease in productiveness occasioned by loss of fertility and ever increasing population, the demand will force prices higher, which will in a manner add to the prosperity of the farmer, especially if he is a good farmer and takes the proper care of his land.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Having Fun.

Our neighboring city, Richmond, is just now troubled in arranging a license schedule on the business men to make good the deficit caused by the loss of the saloon license. The grand total to be raised was the sum of $5,040. To meet this $1,000 would come off the fire and life insurance companies; $2,205 is estimated to come from miscellaneous sources—various corporations and agencies not engaged in buying and selling as merchants. This leaves a balance of $1,835 to be raised from the merchants strictly. The scale was read and discussed in the presence of the assembly, and if any man had a kick coming, he had a chance to be heard. The licenses range from $10 to $35, the majority being the former figure.

Dealers To Join Pool.

A meeting of dealers in leaf tobacco was held in Cincinnati Wednesday for the purpose of considering the proposition to pool all their purchases with the Burley Association. A committee was appointed to confer with all the dealers and shippers with a view to getting them to sign a contract not to sell any tobacco on the breaks either at Cincinnati or Louisville for four months beginning August 1st, and if at the expiration of that time 75 per cent of all the tobacco is signed, that the contract be binding between the dealers and the association.

Official Count Required.

The official count will be required in Mississippi to settle the race between John Sharp Williams and Gov. James K. Vanderman for the nomination for United States Senator. Each of the candidates still claims a victory, but it looks like the chances favor Williams. The difference between them will be only a few votes when the final decision is made by the State Committee on August 8.

A Drastic Measure.

The bill making the entire State of Georgia prohibition was passed by the House Wednesday with two slight amendments, which will be concurred in by the Senate, and the Governor is certain to sign the measure when it reaches him. The new bill is drastic in its regulations and prohibits the sale of liquor in the State.

Tillman Challenges Foraker.

"I won't discuss the negro problem with Senator Foraker at long distance," said Senator Ben Tillman before the Coshocton, O., Chautauqua, Friday, "but I challenge him to meet me in Ohio before an audience of Republican voters and I'll get the best of the argument."

"On the floor of the Senate I have stuck the pitchfork into the senior Senator from Ohio and twisted it around and around but never have I been able to draw him out on this question at close range. When in his Bellefontaine speech he says the South brought the fifteenth amendment to the constitution on its self by refusing to accept the fourteenth, he opens up a question that I would be delighted to discuss with him at short distance."

"He is a most adroit politician. The 40,000 negro votes in Ohio swing his State. Certain distinguished statesmen would pass out of the limelight without negro ballots hence his interest in question. In the Brownsville affair he is right. No man should be punished for the acts of another, but his statement that the South is reaping the result of her own folly is ridiculous and is easily disproved. Let him meet me in Ohio."
